U.S. Senate
Washington D.C.

Dear Senator Cranston:

I have just viewed a television documentary on the life of Raul Wallenberg, the Swedish national who saved many Jews in Hungary during World War II. It has been very well documented that this man was alive in Soviet prisons long after the Soviets pronounced him dead.

I am not Jewish, nor was I ever in Nazi Germany (I am twenty-two years old), but I figured that since there is a new air of openness in the USSR, more about uncovering the truth about this inspirational man could be done. Why was this topic never mentioned during President Reagan's recent visit to Moscow? Every day I heard about the great subject of human rights, but this most flagrant violation of human rights was ignored.

What can be done other than writing to all of the right people?

A response would be greatly appreciated,
